Nancy Wynne Has Much to Chat About—Plays and Players to Hold Thirty-fifth Club Night. Other Matters Discussed

HERE being nothing on earth to do on | he remembered as Miss Sarah Mactill, of Wonday afternoon, with even the trains ed up so one could not go out and one's friends. I hied me with a kined soul to the theatre-for thanks be, fuel administration has allowed them keep open on heatless Mondays, though may not buy pennuts to take along. rever, as "me and the k. z." were a bit we nearly fainted when we found at not only could we get seats, but we them right in the third row in the very ter of the orchestra, and otherwise the use was full. That was fine, you will mit, and certainly the singing and danc-In "Have a Heart" were quite worth ning to. Besides, toward the end it came very interesting indeed, for the ero suddenly remarked "Hello!" and dimled deep into his cheeks at a small boy the front row and even waved his handto at him. And the small boy I pered was none other than the son of r, and Mrs. Edgar M. Church, who, scated etween his father and mother, was having time of his young life with Mr. Reebe he evidently knew them all and was desined to let them see he knew they re there. Mrs. James M. Reed was one the party, and I should say "a good was had by all," Cecily Barnes was not in front of "me and the kindred soul," and the k. s. had a fit over Cecily's voice. ich is deep and vibrant; and her hair hich is soft and brown and arranged in simple and most attractive way; and uniform, which was navy blue, and a tan leather collar and various other id treatments. I don't know just what form it is. Mrs. Reed had on her mergency Aid suit and hat and looked ery well in it; she is an E. A. who wears uniform constantly. I wonder what

MRE Treble Clef concert will take place tonight in the ballroom of the Bellevuenatford and the proceeds derived thereom (I like to say therefrom) will be de-oted to the United Service Club, which is e worthy cause, believe me.

THE Plays and Players are going to hold their thirty-fifth club night on Thurs w and Friday evenings of this week, and re are to be three plays, all of which id decidedly interesting to me. est, "Mrs. Pat and the Law," by Mary shafter, Jr., and the cast will include Mr. haffer, Mrs. Sophie Farr Goddes, Master lwood Altmaier, Mrs. Louise Loughvan

The second play will be "Rosalte," by ary Maurey, and again Mr. Schaffer will the director, and the characters will be ken by Phil Castner, Mrs. Samuel Cooper Helena Baibernie. "The Impertmence the Creature," a dialogue by Cosmo rdon Lennox, will be the third one act y, when Mrs. Phil Castner will take the t of Lady Milleent and An Unknown tleman will be portrayed by Mr. Me.

Certainly they sound good, though one es the names of Joe Decring, Leon owning, Reggie Cates, Sophle Norris and rious other members of the club who e away "doing their bit." Joe Deering with a base hospital "over there." Leon wning is in the navy, if I am not mis iken; Reggie Oates is an officer at one our camps here, and Sophie Norris is g canteen work for the Red Cross in rance. There are a great many other sembers of the Plays and Players who are torking for their country directly, but names came to me first in thinking them over; perhaps it is because I know be owners of the names personally—such things do happen.

MALL daughter was talking to father he exalted age of five winters. She spoke Pather a bored manner of her admirers or in fact she asserted she had many. Ather began to be interested; he foresaw at the time would come when some horman would ask him to let him have at precious little bundle of golden curis. town eyes and fluffy skirts and would the her away from him perhaps; and so inquired who some of these admirers Ight be (seeing in his mind's eye a possisuitor in embryo and decideding at once discourage him now). Well, daughter rugged her shoulders and began to count admirers on her fingers. When he nd that foremost among her beaux were randfather and George Washington he reathed a sigh of relief. No, so far there ied no rival on the horizon. No, not NANCY WYNNE.
